

PROFESSIONS

We work closely with a range of professions including management companies, architects, IT consultants and accountants. There are many thriving businesses, but things can go wrong. If you provide advice or services that a customer is not happy with, you could face legal action.

While you are the experts in your field, providing services and advice in your chosen specialist area, it's important to think about what would happen if you fall foul of wrongful advice, negligence, slander, libel and malicious falsehood.

We have an outstanding track record of working on complex arrangements for a range of insurance including professional indemnity, legal indemnities, warranty and indemnity, after the event and many more.

Professional indemnity insurance protects businesses and individuals in the event of a client claiming to have suffered a loss as a result of a breach of professional duty of care.

“I have worked with and recommended Dale and his team to my clients over the past few years. I have only received positive feedback on his approach and found that his introduction has only enhanced my relationship with my clients. I would not hesitate to recommend Dale to any business client looking to review their commercial insurance’.

CONTRACTUAL REQUIREMENTS

Professionals often work under contractual ‘terms and conditions’ with their suppliers and customers.

Buying “cheap and cheerful” online insurance products is an option but this will not give you a trained eye to check your contractual obligations.

Professionals delivering services or advice should consider this type of insurance – from doctors to dentists, beauticians to barbers, it's worth protecting yourself against a financial blow if disaster strikes.
